Military Child Care In Your Neighborhood (MCCYN)

Serving U.S. Department of Defense Civilian Families

How It Works

MCCYN is a fee assistance program that keeps affordable child care in reach for eligible DoD civilian families. With fee assistance, a portion of your child care cost is paid to reduce the cost of using community-based care. The goal is to make it easier for you to afford quality child care from local community providers when you cannot access child care on a military installation.

Families use MilitaryChildCare.com, a secure DoD gateway to military-operated or military-sponsored child care options, to search the full range of programs that meet their specific care needs in their preferred location.*

If there are no providers listed in a selected area, or a desired provider is not listed, families may choose a provider on their own. All providers must meet the eligibility requirements, apply and be approved to participate in the MCCYN Fee Assistance Program.*

DoD has expanded MCCYN to assist employees of DoD agencies and field activities whose Total Family Income is $90,000 per year or less.

If married, your spouse must be employed, actively seeking employment, or a full-time student. If you are a DoD Civilian assigned to a Branch of Service, visit your Service page at MilitaryChildCare.com/MCCYN to find eligibility requirements. If you are not assigned to a branch of service visit MilitaryChildCare.com/MCCYN/Civilians.
